The Democratic Demonstration in Graiton on Friday Last.

Editors Intelligences:

The heart of the average Democrat was made glad on Friday, by the numerical strength manifested in the demonstration here, about 300 voters from the country being in town on the occasion, attracted hither by the announcement that Judge Thurman, of Ohio, would address them. A pole about 110 feet in heighth was raised successfully, but very laboriously, and at 4 o'clock the "speakin" commenced. A correspondent has furnished you a brief sketch of the address delivered by Col. W. W. Arnett, but some further reference to it is now necessary. irther reference to it is now necessary and all many harding to the courage to ask for space eno. A pole about 110 feet in height enough to meet all the propositions of the raised successfully, but very laborusly, and at 4 o'clock the "speakin" the meet all the propositions of the memored. A correspondent has lurshed you a brief sketch of the address livered by Col. W. W. Arnett, but some called) that Mr. Arnett claimed that Mr. Hiden is a practical reformer, while layers are reference to it is now necessary. He commenced his remarks with a called) that Mr. Hayes voted for and purish, rolling back his sleeves, rolling in the year, and striking an "attitood" as charging that against Mr. Hayes, so I shall not reply to it. But as to Mr. Tilden did not reby one word detract from his and the other of the result of the courage to ask for space to the courage to ask for space then. The commend that Mr. Arnett, but one while it is a practical reformer, while layers is not, and he cites the fact (so-called) that Mr. Hayes voted for and called the back-pay. Mr. Arnett certains his eyes, and striking an "attitood" as charging that against Mr. Hayes, so I shall not reply to it. But as to Mr. Tilden did not provide the corrupt ringmasters of New York until not provided the corrupt ringmasters of New York until the result of the New York Times had exposed the corrupt mass, and did not public opinral merit as an orator. His pomposity doubtless is attributable to his old associations, while sojourning in the land of the Chickahominy; his fund of ancedote can be acquired by almost any professional politician such as he is, especially when made the subject of careful study; his profanity can be excused, also, on the ground that he is representing the party of Reform, and a few cuss words are necessary to keep his record straight, while his egotism is altogether accounted for upon the grounds that he was on this occasion out in the country where, in his estimation, fold-hoppers do most abound, and he felt his extreme "sooperiority." As was remarked by your correspondent, Felix, Mr. Arnett is a demagogue only excelled by Judge Camden, who followed him. But he and all others of his kind must understand that in discussing important issues, his simple assertion that a declaration under controversy is "a lie, a damned lie, on my soul a lie," is not sufficient! I will submit to candid men of both parties that when Republican ciations, while sojourning in the land of the Chickahominy; his fund of aneedot can be acquired by almost any professional politician such as he is, especially when made the subject of careful study; his profanity can be excused, also, on the ground that he is representing the party of Reform, and a few cass words are necessary to keep his record straight, while his egotism is altogether accounted for upon the grounds that he was on this occasion out in the country where, in his estimation, clod-hoppers do most abound, and he felt his extreme "sooperiority." As was remarked by your correspondent, Felix, Mr. Arnett is a demagogue only excelled by Judge Camdea, who followed him. But he and all others of his kind must understand that in discussing important issues, his simple assertion that a declaration under controversy is "a lie, a danned lie, on my soul a lie," is not sufficient! I will submit to candid men of both parties that when Republican orators appear before Grafton audiences, or any other audiences elsewhere in the State, they have shown deference to the intelligence of the assemblage by submitting proof for every single proposition they advanced; and Col. Arnett mistakes when he supposes he may be an exceedingly childish and ridiculous. It is a cheap argument for Arnett to advance that Gen. Hayesis a cypher; a negative; a nobody! But in the lace of historical facts and present knowledge it is exceedingly childish and ridiculous. It is a cheap argument for Arnett to dayance that Gen. Hayesis a cypher; a negative; a nobody! But in the lace of historical facts and present knowledge it is exceedingly childish and ridiculous. G. D. Camden; but I shall consider it as a whole, before passing to other matters. He stated that the government for the past sixteen years has been greater than the expenditures of the government for the past sixteen years has been greater than the expenditures of the optimal profile and profile in the past sixteen years has been greater than the expenditures of the optimal profile i the corrupt mass, and did not public opin ion rise up and demand that it be done Does he not know that the extent of Til has tamous orner "outcawing Horace Greeley some years since, and he imagines he is a "bigger man than old Grant." He repeatedly insinuated his greatness by remarking, "I tell you, gentlemen, this is true, and you all know what my opinion is worth." He would then refer to some the expenditures of the entire eighty-four years preceding; that Hayes cannot reform the government, and will not if he can; that the country had lost its credit and standing with other nations of the world; that the election of Hayes meant a continuance of Grantism; that Grant himself is a corrupt man, although he had the qualities of a courageous man; that had it not been for Grant, General Babcock would have been convicted of the Democratic State Executive Committee sumping the State for Tilden and himself is a corrupt man, although he had no further interest in had the qualities of a courageous man; that had it not been for Grant, General Babcock would have been convicted of crime at St. Louis; that Grant suppressed the evidence, as he (Arnett) knew; that Grant suppressed the evidence, as he (Arnett) knew; that Grant suppressed the evidence, as he (Arnett) knew; that Grant suppressed the evidence, as he (Arnett) knew; that Grant suppressed the evidence, as he (Arnett) knew; that Grant suppressed to the grant set of Radical rascale as ever lived, and (doubtless copying after Mr. Blaine) he "measured his words;" he landed Gen. Mathews, and ridenled Gen. Mathews, and ridenled Gen. Golf's military record; appealed to the passions of his hearers, by frequent reference to the time when the best men of the State were disfranchised; he said he knew all about General Golf's military record—that he (Golf) is receiving honor and credit not his due; that Mathews and the rest of the State ticket were certain of election. As to the charge that Mr. Mathews and other orators on that side had relused to meet Gen. Golf and others in joint debate, he slae pronounced a lie, and said that when the Democratic Executive Committee could find an even divide of time and hearers, they would not fail to meet Gen. Golf and others in joint debate, he slae pronounced a lie, and said that when the Democratic Executive Committee could find an even divide of time and hearers, they would not fail to meet Republican or Tiden for having exhibited the true elements of a reformer in his conviction of Tweed and the tax ring and the canal ring in New York, and in reducing the State taxation one-half; that Tweed escapel, but to Mr. Tidela's inflhence, more than to any other agency, was his recapel.

considering again to National issues, he landed elements of a reformer in his-conviction of Tweed and the tax ring and the canning in New York, and in reducing the State taxation one-half; that Tweed escapel, but to Mr. Tilden's infidence, more than to any other agency, was his recapture due; that if a man can show courage enough to attack and crush his friends (as Tweed and others were) what would he not do to his political enemies, as President, interspersed with a few very well recited anecdotes, and repeated ringing of the changes on the demand for reform, together with frequent references to the bloody shirt, Morton and Blaine, and with the indirect announcement at sundry times that he had been a Confederate soldier, and was glad of it.

In answer to these wholesale declarations, and this general defamation of the Republican party, meddlesome people are disposed to inquire why didn't he give more substantial proof than mere ipse more substantial proof than mere ipse more substantial proof than mere ipse the content of the content and the content and Others will begin to respond as follows: That the charge of squandering the public money is unitrue, became the public aspects will show that there is less loss per $1,000, from all sources, in the collections and disbursement of the public are funds under Republican rule-during and since the war, than the same public get could be supposed in the same public aspects and since the war, than the same public get out of the scrape. All which leads the cords show was lost under Democratic rule from 1834 to 1840. Arnett, the expenses of the government are but about $4,000,000 per annum more now, in the aggregate, than in 1800, while the population of the country is largely increased. The expenditures, Mr. Arnett should remember, were the direct result of the rebellion which he and several others attempted to render successful, and the declaration from him that the union soldiers should have copducted the war on a cheaper scale comes with very Street rumor has it that I had written a letter to Mr. Jordan to pay me money Street rumor has it that I had written a letter to Mr. Jordan to pay me money doe my father, collected by him (Jordan), as an attempt to black mail him. I would condially invite Mr. Jordan to publish that letter, backed up by his oath that no alteration or change has been made in it. I know what I wrote to Mr. Jordan and would like very much to have it published. It would be read and appreciated by the public.

war on a cheaper scale comes with very bad grace indeed. Mr. Arnett's declaration that Hayes cannot reform the government is mere assertion by a prejudiced witness, and when Mr. Hayes takes his seat next March, it will be with the entire confidence of most men that such reforms as are needed will be effected all the same, although Mr. Arnett predicts otherwise. Again if it be true that the country has lost its standing with other countries, whose fault is it? But it is not true. While the bonds of the government under Buchanan could only be sold at 15 per cent discount, to-day capitalists are glad to invest in them at 41 per cent interest. And if Hayes' first term will be a continuation of Grant's second term, can we not by the same How does it come that every woman a hundred years old who didn't know George Washington gets her name in the papers on account of having made a quilt with five hundred patches in 11.7 DIED.

And if Hayes' first term will be a continuation of Grant's second term, can we not by the same course of reasoning prove that if Tilden should be elected, his first ferm will supplement Jeff. Is it not the boast of the Democratic party that Tilden will be supported by the "solid South," and has not that cry bean the Democratic watchword: throughout the present campaign?
